Dear Parent,

From time to time children have illnesses which will prevent them from coming to school. As the prime carer of the child each parent will make judgements regarding the appropriate action to take when a child is ill and, of course, when to see your G.P.

There are a number of conditions that have specific arrangements associated with them and we will, in those cases, make them known to you as and when they occur. We have this term already informed you of one such child.

With specific regard to sickness you will I am sure understand that a child can vomit for a number of reasons and it is for you as a parent to come to a view as to the correct course of action. G.P.s will normally advise 48 hours away from school in the event of vomiting and diarrhoea. When in doubt of course, we do urge you to seek medical advice.

Yours sincerely

Sir Andrew Carter
